

Dirty Love Burger with quail egg

A pond for waterfowl fans

Love Shack So7

Celebrity chef Tim Love's newest restaurant hides away in the So7 development near Trinity Park. We recommend you search it out for one of the city's very best burgers. Order the Dirty Love Burger ($5.77), a creative combination of ground prime tenderloin and prime brisket, topped with American cheese and a fried quail egg. Or try the housemade spicy chile-Parmesan chips and onion rings lightly battered and fried in trans fat-free cooking oil. shakeyourloveshack.com

Trinity Park Duck Pond

Order your tasty Dirty Love Burger from Love Shack So7 as takeout; then stroll across the street to share a piece of your Mrs. Baird's bread bun with the raucous ducks that call this pocket pond home. Your children will ask to return again and again—and it's an easy yes for any parent. We adults regard this relaxing oasis as a hidden gem, where watching waterfowl is the most simple and satisfying of pleasures. Pond at West 7th Street and Museum Way

Backwoods

Book a Kilimanjaro safari or a trekking trip to Nepal—or try a Texas adventure a little closer to home at this everything-outdoors shop. For instance, sign up here to learn the basics of fly-fishing in a five-hour Saturday class; then take practice casting lessons on the lawn of the Kimbell Art Museum. The session runs only $50 and may start you gazing at every river and stream with new eyes. For a cool look, the Tilley Mesh Hat ($76) is guaranteed for life and even comes with an owner's manual. 2727 West 7th Street; backwoods.com

- 1 Modern Art Museum
- 2 Museum of Science and History
- 3 Gloria's
- 4 Uncommon Angles
- 5 Love Shack So7
- 6 Trinity Park Duck Pond
- 7 Backwoods

A hat with an owner's manual