THE BEST DINING GUIDE IN AMERICA DECLARES LONESOME DOVE WESTERN BISTRO NUMBER ONE

FORT WORTH, Texas (November 13, 2003) – The 2004 Zagat Survey results are in and Lonesome Dove Western Bistro has been recognized as having the best food in Fort Worth, winning the restaurant a spot in Zagat’s coveted "America's Top Restaurants."

The survey breaks restaurants into categories such as best French, Italian, American and Steakhouses and then rate on food, décor and service. Ratings range from 11-14 for good, 16-20 for very good and 21-25 for excellent. Ratings between 26 and 30 are extraordinary; the Lonesome Dove received the highest rating of Fort Worth restaurants – a 28 for food. They also received a 23 for décor and a 25 for service.

The Zagat Survey is purely reader-driven. Rather than having one professional critic evaluate a restaurant, the survey reflects multiple customers’ opinions. At last count, Zagat had over 150,000 amateur critics spread out all over the country.

A member of the American Culinary Federation and Texas Chefs Association, Love has received overwhelming critical-acclaim from across the country for his mouthwatering Urban Western Cuisine. Honors include recognition by the “Today” show, Associated Press, Bon Appetit, Southern Living, New York Times, National Geographic Traveler and Cowboys and Indians. In May 2003, the Dallas Morning News gave the Lonesome Dove Western Bistro four-and-a-half stars – the highest rating of any Fort Worth restaurant in memory.
